To Provide ORT ...ning Work

...announcement of the signing of ... agreement under which ... will be provided by the Joint Distribution Committee in ... to ORT, principal agency ... vocational training to ... overseas, was made in New ... The agreement provides that ... of the sum will be furnished ... by JDC in local currency to ORT in Poland for its work in that country. The agreement was signed ... George Backer, Dr. David ...ewitch and Dr. Aron Syngalowski, representing ORT, and Moses ... Leavitt, executive vice-chairman ... the JDC, major American welfare agency aiding distressed Jews abroad. Mr. Backer is president of the American ORT Federation, and Drs. Lewitch and Syngalowski are co-chairmen of the executive committee of the World ORT Union.

Under the terms of the agreement, ORT will not conduct an independent fund raising campaign in the United States. The JDC will provide ORT with the principal finances required for that organization's overseas programs in Europe and North Africa, from funds it will receive from the campaign of the United Jewish Appeal. Similar agreements between JDC and ORT were reached in 1947, 1948, and 1949. Under these agreements JDC has withdrawn from almost all direct vocational training activity, leaving the field to ORT. JDC, however, has continued other direct economic reconstruction efforts including the support of loan banks, producers' cooperatives, and other activities not embraced by the ORT program.

Leaders of both the JDC and ORT pointed out that the signing of ... agreement constitutes only ... agreements to ... American ... one gift ... Appeal, ... the ... additional contributions ... will benefit every vital need of ... Jews overseas. In 1949, according to ORT officials, the organization afforded training to more than 30,000 students in nearly 100 vocational training centers in 20 countries. More than 10,000 of these were students who completed their training during the year and were graduated.

The vocational training assistance which JDC will continue to support through its agreement with ORT represents one aspect of the agency's program for 1950, during which it will continue its broad-scale relief, reconstruction, and emigration efforts in behalf of more than 500,000 Jews in need in Europe and North Africa. The JDC budgetary requirements for its overall 1950 activities total $84,512,000. JDC and ORT leaders pointed out that a pressing need still exists to provide new skills to help the idle and dependent to become self-supporting, whether they remain in their native lands or emigrate to new homes in Israel or other areas.

The greatest expansion in ORT vocational training activities in 1949 took place in North Africa. One year ago two vocational training projects in these areas pro-

Orthodox Score Attempts To Convert Jews

A nation-wide drive to halt the assimilation of the American Jew into majority religions was begun at Boston, Mass., at the annual conference of the Rabbinical Council of America. Rabbi Israel Tabak, of Baltimore, Maryland, president of the Council, asserted that "corrosive influences" at work on the Jewish people were threatening the future of Judaism in the United States.

Specifically mentioning the Pope's Christmas message inviting non-Catholics into the Roman Catholic Church, Rabbi Tabak told a press conference that this was illustrative of "a new tendency on the part of the various Christian denominations to aim their missionary programs at the Jewish people." Rabbi Tabak contended that "Jews leaving the Orthodox fold and going into Reform temples are taking the first step toward assimilation."

In a prepared speech to the Council Rabbi Tabak asserted that intermarriage was "against the most hallowed principles of the Jewish faith." He contended that studies had proved such marriages had been 90 per cent unsuccessful and that they "undermine the stability of the home, increase the number of unhappy marriages and bring children into the world with a rift in their souls which can never be healed."

Union Fund To Build Street Of Homes In Israel

Six New York locals of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, CIO, will build a street of homes for workers in a new labor community in Israel.

Members of the locals collected more than $100,000 for this purpose by giving a day's pay and plan to contribute other large sums to help solve Israel's housing problems.

The money was turned over to the Histadrut, the National Labor Committee for Israel, in the offices of the union's joint board at 81 West Fifteenth Street. Louis Hollander, manager of the joint board, presided. Thirty-six two-family houses will be built on Amalgamated Street in the projected town of Holon, fifteen minutes from Tel-Aviv, and a representative would begin shortly.

Mr. Hollander disclosed that the idea for the contribution originated with him on a visit to Israel last year when he saw the poor housing conditions afforded immigrants. He inaugurated the drive last Labor Day and that while the collection was voluntary almost the entire membership of the six locals contributed. He said that the money would be used primarily to provide housing for new citizens of Israel.

Jacob S. Potofsky, international president of the Amalgamated, praised the contribution as being in keeping with the "noble traditions" of the union. Joseph Schlossberg, former secretary of the Amalgamated and now chairman of Histadrut, accepted the gift.

Scores Jews Here For Camp Life In Israel

Henry Morgenthau Jr., chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, visited some of Israel's immigration camps after an absence of fourteen months and was "shocked" by what he saw. He described conditions as "bad beyond description" and laid the blame directly at the door of American Jews who, he said, have been lax in their support.

When Mr. Morgenthau was last in Israel there were 16,000 immigrants in the camps compared with 82,000 today. He saw men, women and children huddled together in flimsy tents and unheated wooden huts, where many will have to stay indefinitely until they can be absorbed properly, says the New York Times.

"I am sure," Mr. Morgenthau said, "that if more American Jews could see what I have seen — people who live twelve to sixteen in a tent, who walk around dressed in rags, undernourished children who are no more than whimpering skeletons — they would be the first to admit that they have not begun to give adequately to the United Jewish Appeal."

It is "unthinkable," he said, that immigration should be limited, and warned that several thousand Jews

Israel May Curb Public-Charge Entry

Immigration to Israel would be curbed for the first time since the state was created as a result of a resolution passed by the Jewish Agency Executive. The Agency which is the executive arm of the World Zionist Organization, decided on the principle of quarterly immigration quotas to be determined by available funds. The decision will be reviewed in April, when the Zionist General Council convenes.

Unlimited immigration during the first seventeen months of Israel's statehood has thrown the Jewish Agency heavily into debt as fund-raising in the United States fell short of its target and the immigration rate surpassed expectations. The Agency has decided to consolidate its budget and begin repaying its debts. The body has adopted for 1950 a budget of $112,000,000, which is 40 per cent of the sum that had been proclaimed as necessary to absorb the immigration expected during the year.

The Israeli Government's "open gates" policy is not affected by the Agency's action. Entry will still be unrestricted for all Jews able to finance their own journeys and establish themselves. The Jewish Agency regulation applies only to those coming in as public charges.

The nineteen-man executive has been sitting nineteen days in Jerusalem, and has held joint meetings with the Cabinet. The issue of the definition of rights and duties of the Jewish Agency is still unsettled and a subcommittee has been appointed to draft proposals. The next Zionist Congress is scheduled for Jerusalem in December and the question of the Agency's status is expected to drag on until then.

To Ask U.S. Zionists To Submerge Party Interests

Daniel Frisch, president of the Zionist Organization of America, who returned to New York after a month's visit to Israel, announced that within the next two months he will call a national meeting of the leaders of all Zionist groups to co-ordinate American activities concerning the new state.

Speaking at a press conference at his office, 41 East Forty-second Street, Mr. Frisch emphasized that submerging the differences among the various Zionist groups would reduce substantially the tensions which the organizations place upon Israel.

Mr. Frisch made clear that the projected conference is the first step in a long-range program to unify all elements in American Jewish life sympathetic to Israel. Eventually, he said, he hopes to have non-Zionist groups co-operation with the Zionist bodies. The World Zionist Congress is to meet in Jerusalem either this year or early next year, and Mr. Frisch said he would like to have agreement on united action in the United States in time for presentation to that meeting.

The major political groups in Israel each have their counterparts and supporters in the United States. For example, the General Zionists in Israel have the Zionist Organization of America and the Mizrachi, or religious group, has a similar organization in America. Some American groups have been seeking to have Israel swing toward socialism, while others want to see the new state have a system similar to that in the United States.

"The Zionist Organization of America, to the extent that the president can bespeak its thinking, believes that in order to obtain maximum results in support of Israel it would be most desirable to submerge U.S. party interests to a minimum so that complete coordination of activities may be achieved," Mr. Frisch said.

"With this in view, and believing that I reflect the thinking and feelings of the leaders of the state of Israel, the Jewish Agency and the World Zionist Organizations, I intend, as president of the Zionist Organizations of America, to call a conference of the leadership of the various Zionist groups with a view of reaching such an understanding."

Other points made by Mr. Frisch during his press conference were that the question of internationalization of Jerusalem as proposed by the United Nations was academic since the population would never submit to it, and that Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion is the most popular man in Israel.

Mr. Frisch said that if the "Zionist movement is to continue to exist we must not attempt to tell them how to live in Israel, just as they must not tell us how to manage Zionist affairs here."

Meanwhile, Rabbi Max Kirshblum, executive vice-president of Mizrachi, said his organization would accept an invitation "for an exchange of opinion." Rabbi Kirshblum, however, asserted that differences "between Zionist organizations are exaggerated and by no means a serious issue."

Mrs. Moses P. Epstein, public relations chairman of Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America, said that "Hadassah knows of no controversy at the present time raging in the Zionist world." She declared that "should serious differences arise among the parties there is a body which provides a common platform for discussing these differences — the American Zionist Council, established for just this purpose."

Dr Berl Frymer, executive director of the Labor Zionist Organization of America, the political arm of the Zionist movement in America, representing the Pioneer Women, the Jewish National Workers' Alliance, and Habonim, said that a call for such a conference would have to come from the "World Zionist Congress after long and serious deliberations."

Sees "Disaster" Without U.S. Money Aid

The Jews of Israel, of eastern Europe, and particularly of Arab lands face "disaster" unless their coreligionists in America come to their aid by providing funds for settling immigrants in Palestine, Henry Morgenthau Jr. declared in New York.

Mr. Morgenthau, who is general chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, returned from a two-week visit to Israel. He gave his report to the national campaign cabinet of the Appeal at a meeting in the Empire Broadcasting Studio, 480 Lexington Avenue. His address was broadcast from 1:30 to 2:10 p.m. to gatherings of 11,000 campaign workers in 105 cities throughout the United States.

Mr. Morgenthau thus introduced the 1950 campaign of the Appeal for $272,455,800, which is the largest fund-raising drive ever undertaken by voluntary agencies in America. The national campaign will be started officially in Miami on February 25 and 26. The Greater New York section of the drive for approximately one-third of the national quota has started.

Mr. Morgenthau said Israel had made "unbelievable progress" since his previous visit fifteen months ago and had a "wonderful future," but he confessed, "I am worried about its present."

"It is impossible," he said, "for Israel to carry the burden of receiving and caring for all who escaped the fate of the martyred 6,000,000 Jews of Europe, without adequate help from us.

"With all the goodwill and sympathy in the world, with all the austerity and sacrifice of which human beings are capable, the Jews of Israel cannot create food, housing, jobs, medicine out of thin air. Neither can they create one dollar's worth of anything with 50 cents. We have been providing them with less than 50 cents per dollar of need."

The chairman referred to the recommendation of the Jewish Agency Executive in Jerusalem to limit immigration into Israel by quota for lack of funds. The 1949 appeal raised only $115,000,-

Operated N.Y. Stores; Began As Boy From Minsk

Max Weinstein, who came to America from Russia as an immigrant boy in 1893 and rose to the presidency of Russeks Fifth Avenue, died of a heart attack in his home at 146 Central Park West, in New York.

Born seventy-one years ago in Minsk, he reached New York when he was 14. In 1900 he put $1,000 he had saved into a small cloak manufacturing concern started by him and his brother, Philip, at 280 Canal Street. The firm prospered in the next twenty years and moved to 114 East Twenty-third Street as Weinstein Brothers Coat House.

In 1920 Mr. Weinstein decided to shut down the business, which was then producing annually goods valued at $3,000,000. He said the substitution of week work for piece work by the International Ladies Garment Workers Union in 1919 had made it impossible for him to continue profitably.

After retiring with his brother from the clothing business Max Weinstein became head of Weinstein, Seligman & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, in which firm he previously had acquired a silent interest. In 1924 he left it to reorganize Russeks and to become its president.

In 1928 Mr. Weinstein became chairman of the board of the Industrial National Bank of New York, founded by him at 73 Second Avenue. This bank later merged with the Continental Bank and Trust Company, in which he became a large stockholder. Retiring from banking in 1931 to devote his full time to the expansion program of Russeks, he served as president of the firm until May 1, 1947, when he was succeeded by David Nemerov. Mr. Weinstein then became chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the firm.

"I believe that the spirit of brotherhood and of mutual understanding among various creeds and sects in America can be fostered to a greater effectiveness if we shall all adhere to a policy of frowning on mixed marriages," Rabbi Tabak said.

SEES "DISASTER"

000 toward a goal of $250,000,000 in the United States.

The United Jewish Appeal must finance the transportation of immigrants from Europe and North Africa to Israel and their settlement there, and must provide for settling 85,000 immigrants waiting in camps in Israel for homes and work. The Appeal also brings a smaller number of refugees to the United States and a few other lands of sanctuary, and provides for Jews who must be left where they are in war-stricken areas.

"Without money, there can be no rescue," Mr. Morgenthau told his colleagues. "Without money, the immigrant camps in Israel, with their 85,000 men, women and children, will be a blot on our record.

"Any reduction now in immigration from Arab lands and elsewhere will be tantamount to writing a death warrant for many thousands of Jews. The fate of hundreds of thousands of Jews waiting for emigration to Israel to escape persecution and misery is in the hands of the Jews of the United States.

"Disaster faces the Jews of Israel also unless American Jews recognize the urgency of their responsibility in 1950".

Julian B. Venezky of Peoria, Ill., chairman of the national campaign cabinet of the appeal, presided at the meeting.

MARRIAGES

ROTTENBERG-RICHMAN

The marriage of Rita, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Richman, 4000 City Hall Avenue, to Oscar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Rottenberg, 4315 Esplanade Avenue, took place at Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, on January 15, at six o'clock, Dr. Solomon Frank, Rabbi, and Reverend S. Kastner, officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a floor-length princess gown of white satin with a round neckline with similar hand-strung pearl beads, long sleeves coming to points at the wrist, tight fitting bodice, with a peplum trimmed with similar hand-strung pearl beads, and a full skirt ending in a long train. Her crown of pearl beads was draped with a hand-embroidered veil of tulle illusion, and she carried a Bible with two mauve orchids and streamers. Miss Evelyn Richman, sister of the bride, as maid of honour, wore a floor-length gown of baby-blue net over a taffeta skirt, with a flared skirt, trimmed with ruffles, and a matching blue headdress of the same material, with veil to match, and carried variegated spring flowers. The flower girls were Anna Richman, sister of the bride, and Sandra Friedman, niece of the groom. The former wore a floor-length dress of pink net, over a full taffeta skirt, with matching bonnet trimmed with blue forget-me-nots. The latter wore a floor-length dress of mauve net, over a full taffeta skirt, with matching bonnet, trimmed with forget-me-nots. Each carried a nosegay of variegated spring flowers. The best man was Paul Brownstein. The ushers were: Myer Goldin, Hyman Fox, Manuel Weigenberg, Joseph Cohen, Joseph Elman, Louis Reim, Edward Kasner, and Bernard Fishman. William Reim, cousin of the bride, in full dress, was page boy. Fourteen candelabra, trimmed with flowers and white satin ribbon, with eight standards of spring flowers were used as decoration. The canopy was decorated with variegated flowers. There was a singer and an orchestra. The reception took place in the hall of the synagogue. The head table held three large compositions of flowers and candles, and the other tables were decorated with arrangements of flowers and candles. Mrs. Richman, mother of the bride, received in a floor-length gown of brown lace with long sleeves, and full skirt, and a hat of gold net, with an insert of yellow-coloured velvet roses, and a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Rottenberg, mother of the groom, in a floor-length gown of royal-blue lace, with long sleeves and a full skirt, had a matching hat and a corsage of orchids. The bride and groom left for New York, the former travelling in a navy-blue suit, with matching hat, and grey shoes and grey bag. They will reside at 4890 Maplewood Avenue. Out-of-town wedding guests were: Mrs. P. Kaufman, grandmother of the bride, of La Macaza; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Herman, brother-in-law and sister of the groom, of North Bay, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rottenberg, brother and sister-in-law of the groom, of Val d'Or; Mr. and Mrs. Abe Kastner, uncle and aunt of the groom, of Shawinigan Falls; and Mr. and Mrs. Julius Litwin, of Campbellton, N.B.

BURG-CARPMAN

The wedding of Sophie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Carpman, 798 Champagneur Avenue, to Irving, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Burg, 154 St. Charles Place, Atlantic City, N. J., took place at Beth David Synagogue on Sunday, January 21, at seven o'clock. Rabbi Isaac J. Teicher officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a floor-length gown of white satin, fashioned with a high, round, net neckline, studded with seed pearl beads, long pointed sleeves, tight-fitting bodice, and full skirt, having a long train. A flowered crown, trimmed with seed pearl beads, caught her long scalloped veil, and she carried a bible, with orchids and streamers. Miss Clara Carpman, sister of the bride, as maid of honour, wore a floor-length ice-blue strapless gown, of brocaded satin, made with tight-fitted bodice, and a full flared net skirt. She had a Juliette silver cap and a bouquet of pink roses. Sandra Carpman, niece of the bride, as flower girl, wore a powder-blue floor length dress, with a hoop skirt, and a matching heart-shaped bonnet and gloves, and carried a white basket of variegated flowers, with yellow streamers. Meyer Burg, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were: Isaie Burg, Norman Mednick, Jack Carpman, Sidney Weinstein, David Benowitz, Leonard Kraft, and Roy Cohen. Irving Carpman, brother of the bride, in full dress, was the page boy. He carried a heart-shaped pillow decorated with white flowers. The decorations were of white chrysanthemums and pompoms, with ferns, candelabra, and an archway of variegated flowers, trimmed with white satin ribbons. "Because" was sung for the ceremony. Centrepieces of flowers ornamented the tables. There was music during dinner and also for dancing. Mrs. Carpman, mother of the bride, received in a navy-blue lace floor-length gown, having a deep square lace neckline, over taffeta, and a full skirt, also with a blue hat, with pink ostrich feathers, and a corsage of mauve orchids. Mrs. Burg, mother of the groom, wore a light turquoise-blue lace floor-length gown, with matching hat, and a corsage of mauve orchids. The bride and groom spent their honeymoon in New York and Florida, the former travelling in a brown gabardine suit, with green and beige accessories, a brown Alaska seal jacket, and a corsage of yellow roses. They will reside at 8225 Temple Road, Philadelphia, Pa. The wedding guests from out of town were: Mr. and Mrs. Percy Carpman, and Mr. and Mrs. N. Tatelman, of Boston, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Philip Burg, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Laufer, Miss Faige Burg, Meyer Burg, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ackerman, Mrs. Fay Cohen, of Atlantic City, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Burg, Mrs. Irving Roseman, Mr. and Mrs. Isaie Burg, Charles Ackerman, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kraft, David Benowitz, Sidney Weinstein, and Joseph Corina, all of Philadelphia, Pa.

30 Dietitians tried this BLINDFOLD Taste-Test
21 voted Heinz first for flavour-first for nourishment

More than 70 per cent of a group of dietitians declared their preference for Heinz Cream of Tomato Soup after comparing it with another popular brand. Instead of an actual "blindfold" test they were served with two bowls of hot soup and asked to vote without knowing the brands they were tasting. Their preference for Heinz came close to coinciding with the 65 per cent choice of 313 average housewives in a similar taste-test.

Lucky, isn't it, that this "milchig mechaya" is made Without Meat, Without Fat or any Other Ingredient Contrary to Jewish Dietary Laws.

MARRIAGES

GERTEL-RUBIN

The marriage of Miss Sylvia Lillian Rubin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Abraham Rubin, 314 Chapin Terrace, Springfield, Mass., to William Gertel, son of Mr. and Mrs Sidney Gertel, 4482 de Bullion St., took place at Bnai Jacob Synagogue on Sunday, January 1, at half-past six o'clock, Dr. C. N. Denburg, Rabbi, officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a long white chiffon gown, with lace insets. It was designed in off-the-shoulder style, with large, puffed sleeves of chiffon, with lace; and lace gloves; fitted bodice, and full chiffon skirt, with lace. Her crown of orange blossoms held her seven-yard-long illusion tulle veil; and she carried a large bouquet of lillies, tied with white satin streamers. Mrs. Peter Wolkove, sister of the groom, was matron of honor. Wearing a brocaded taffeta gown, with a blue-grey feathered hat, and grey lace gloves, she carried a bouquet of Talisman roses, tied with silver streamers. Miss Rose Friedman, the junior bridesmaid, wore a blue net and taffeta gown, with a mauve headdress, and mauve gloves; and carried a large nosegay of pink and yellow variegated flowers, tied with silver streamers. Edward Karpman was best man. The ushers were: Morton Rubin, brother of the bride; Peter Wolkove and Harry Fridhandler, brothers-in-law of the groom; Saul Morris, cousin of the bride; and Edward Wolkove, Mort. Cohen, and Sidney Ozier, friends of the groom. Receiving, at dinner at the synagogue, Mrs. Rubin, mother of the bride, wore a blue-grey gown, with a lace bodice, a grey tulle hat, with pink rosebuds; and a corsage of pink roses, tied with silver ribbon. Mrs. Gertel, mother of the groom, wore a royal-blue lace gown, with a blue feathered tulle hat, and a corsage of Talisman roses. Bill Kugler's orchestra played. The bride and groom spent their wedding trip in New York, and are living in Montreal temporarily, prior to taking up residence in Springfield. For travelling to New York, the bride wore a navy-blue suit, with navy purse and gloves, and red shoes. Mr. and Mrs. B. Rubin, Eli Rubin, Joseph Michaelman, and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Katz, all of Springfield; and Mr. and Mrs. Myer Freed, of Brooklyn, N. Y., were guests.

MARRIAGES

HALPERT-BATCHER

The marriage of Charlotte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Batcher, 82 Delaware Avenue, to Albert, son of Emmanuel Halpert, of New York, and Mrs. S. Gell, of Buffalo, N. Y., took place on December 24, at eight o'clock, at Murray House, Rabbi David Monson officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Her gown of white satin was cut with a sweetheart neckline, long pointed sleeves, fitted torso-length bodice, and full gathered skirt that finished in a short train. Her tulle illusion veil, trimmed with embroidery, was caught to a crown worked in seed pearl beads, and she carried a white Bible adorned with a white orchid and streamers. Miss Florence Batcher was maid of honour. Wearing a blue satin gown, with a net yoke inset at the neckline, cap sleeves, and full skirt, with matching gloves, she had a crown of Tea roses and carried a matching cascade. The best man was Dick Grossman, of Rochester, N. Y. Mrs. Batcher wore a royal-blue crepe gown, with high round neckline, cap sleeves, matching long gloves, and straight skirt, with corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Gell was in a black crepe dinner gown, with high neckline, cap sleeves, matching gloves, and straight skirt, with corsage of red roses. For the trip to Montreal, Que., the bride wore a caramel coloured tailored gabardine suit, with brown accessories, brown fur jacket, and white gardenia corsage. The couple will reside in New York. Out-of-town guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. S. Marks, of Cleveland, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. J. Marks, of Detroit, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. S. Gell, Miss Renate Katz, Mr. and Mrs. Cy. Viniek, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Dick Grossman, of Rochester, N. Y.; Mrs. H. Springer, of Belleville; and Emmanuel Halpert, of New York.

KULMAN-SEIDEN

The marriage of Rhoda, daughter of Mrs. Minnie Seiden, 160 Borden Street, and the late Samuel Seiden, to Gordon, son of Mrs. Toby Kulman, of St. Thomas, and the late Max Kulman, took place on Sunday, January 29, at one o'clock, at Yeshivah Torath Chaim. Rabbi A. A. Price officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Max Seiden, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, gave her in marriage. She wore white lace over crepe, fashioned with an oval neckline, inset with satin, long sleeves, with frills at the wrists, fitted bodice, and straight skirt, forming into a train, designed with organdy frills between inserts of lace. Her short tulle illusion veil was draped to a crown of bugle and seed pearl beads, and she carried a white Bible adorned with a white orchid and streamers of baby orchids. Miss Dora Kulman, sister of the groom, was maid of honor, in a pink taffeta gown, with round bertha collar, short sleeves, and full skirt, with three tiers that extended into a point in the back, also a matching Dutch bonnet. She carried a cascade of pink carnations and roses. Donna Bergman and Manya Adler were flower girls, dressed alike in blue taffeta, with round necklines, puffed sleeves, and full skirts, also matching bonnets, and they carried white baskets of rose petals. Frank Seiden was best man. The ushers were Irwin Bergman, Harry Greenwald, George Barrett, and Nathan Brown, Jacob Brown, and Abe Brown, of Kincardine. The ring-bearer was Larry Barrett, in full dress. A dinner followed at Murray House for the immediate family. Mrs. Seiden wore a blue crepe dinner gown, with openwork on the high neckline and long sleeves, and on the drapery of the straight skirt, with corsage of red roses. Mrs. Kulman was in a tan dinner gown, consisting of a lace top, with high neckline, and long sleeves, and straight crepe skirt, with lace drapery, and corsage of Talisman roses. For the motor trip to Florida, the bride wore a beige, softly tailored gabardine suit, with green accessories, neutral-coloured straw hat, and matching shortie coat, with corsage of Talisman roses. They will reside in St. Thomas. Out-of-town wedding guests were: Mr. and Mrs. David Adler and children, Steven and Manya, of St. Thomas; Mr. and Mrs. H. Kushner, of Wyandotte, Mich.; and Mrs. Seymour Kraft, of Detroit, Mich.

SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"

Badminton makes it's bow!

How Badminton became one of Canada's first-rank sports!

1930 . . . Badminton players across Canada were training hard. Five years earlier an English team had come to teach Canadians the game's fine points. Now another group of Britain's top amateurs were making a tournament tour of the nation's clubs to see how the game had caught on.

The Canadian Open Badminton Championships will be held this year in Calgary during March Canadians had been keen learners . . . and the visitors found themselves evenly matched. The final decision was to come from the Canadian champion. In successive games at Toronto, Kingston and Montreal he defeated Britain's four leading players . . . Canada had won a top place in the badminton world.

Badminton grows daily in popularity with Canadians. Keen competition and good sportsmanship have made it a favourite everywhere. And, together, competition and sportsmanship make things better for Canadians in work and play. They keep your future in Canada . . . unlimited.

The acquisition by Brandeis University, in Waltham, Mass., of the library of the late George A. Barton, Professor of Semitic Languages and Comparative religion, at the University of Pennsylvania until his death in 1942, was announced by Dr. Abram L. Sachar, president. Comprising 4000 volumes and journals and including many rare items, the Barton Library is one of the most extensive unified collections on Near Eastern Archeology and the History of Religion to be found in the United States. The collection, which covers the fields of comparative religion, church history, Semitics, Near Eastern archeology, Egyptology, and ethics, served as the working library of Prof. Barton and comprises the lifetime collection of the late Near Eastern expert. Professor Barton, who was proficient in some 29 languages and authorised more than 30 books and hundreds of studies in various scientific magazines, served as Professor of Biblical Literature and Semitic languages at Bryn Mawr College from 1891 to 1922. His book Archeology And The Bible was published in seven editions, the last edition of which was reprinted four times. The Barton Library is the first unified collection of such magnitude to be acquired by Brandeis University which opened in the fall of 1948.

Studies Origin Of Reform Practices

The development of Liberal Judaism in the United States did not follow a uniform pattern in all congregations because each congregation has its own special character and needs, and "the final authority for the adoption of Reform Judaism rested in the hands of the congregations," writes Rabbi Jerome W. Grollman of the United Hebrew Temple, St. Louis, Missouri, in the new issue of American Jewish Archives, just off the press.

Rabbi Grollman, graduate of the Hebrew Union College in the Class of 1948, writing on "The Emergence of Reform Judaism in the United States" in the semi-annual historical publication of the American Jewish Archives of the College in Cincinnati, says: "Sometimes the congregations approved the reform measures recommended by their spiritual leaders; at other times they rejected them. Ofttimes, the congregations introduced reforms either against the wishes or without consulting the wishes of their spiritual leaders."

Because of the congregational origin of and responsibility for the innovation of reform practices, Rabbi Grollman writes, "a valid area of investigation includes the analysis of congregational minute books in an effort to determine actual sequences of events in the development of Reform Judaism in the United States." His study, based on minute books in the files of the American Jewish Archives of the Hebrew Union College, is the first attempt to scrutinize the history of Reform on a broad congregational level.

Rabbi Grollman confesses at the outset that not enough minute books were studied to arrive at definitive conclusions, but his pioneering work does open up many new vistas in the history of Liberal Judaism, and it does admit of a tentative view of reform innovations. The sequence of reform indicated by this preliminary study is set down by Rabbi Grollman as follows: revision of prayer service; introduction of organ; mixed choir of men and women; separation of men and women at services abolished; late Friday evening service; abandonment of hats at service; confirmation of boys and girls.

While revision of the prayer service came first in most, but not all, of the congregations studied, only minor changes were made at first, Rabbi Grollman writes. The appearance of Reform tendencies, he says, did not result in the immediate abandonment of traditional observances. Rabbi Grollman adds that in every congregation studied there appeared to be a focal point of conflict, a reform which encountered the greatest opposition, after which other reforms proved more acceptable and were instituted more rapidly. It is to be expected that, as more congregations make available their minute books and other historical documents to the American Jewish Archives at the Hebrew Union College, other investigations of American Jewish congregations will be conducted, thus adding to the store of our religious history.

Another essay in the January, 1950, issue of American Jewish Archives, entitled "The Trials Of An Immigrant One Hundred Years Ago," is contributed by Rabbi Bertram W. Korn, of Reform Congregation Keneseth Israel, in Philadelphia, Pa. Rabbi Korn publishes four letters sent by Seligman Kakeles, a Bohemian immigrant who came to the United States in 1846, to Gerrit Smith, the reformer and friend of John Brown, the Abolitionist. Kakeles, who was to become the sexton of Temple Emanu-El, in New York, from 1864 until his death in 1903, was a grandfather of the noted American composer, Jerome Kern.

The American Jewish Archives at the Liberal seminary in Cincinnati, Ohio, is gathering a file of American Jewish newspapers, periodicals and journals; minute books of congregations and benevolent societies; individual legal documents including wills, marriage contracts and citizenship papers; histories of congregations and communities; correspondence, pictures, genealogies, scrapbooks, newspaper clippings, memoirs, rare printed matter, and reference books.

Caesarea To Be Restored As Port

Modern divers are scouting the sea floor of Caesarea, thirty miles north of Tel Aviv, in the first step to restore one of the world's ancient harbors. Caesarea was developed originally by King Herod the Great thirteen years before Christ. As the principal seaport of Palestine, it is now to come back for the first time since then as a usable harbor.

Israel intends to build a fishing port there, according to official notices; but the extensive preparations indicate that the natural port is being fashioned for something more.

Working within the shadow of ruins of the Crusader fortress, Navy divers whose gear would remind one of a Crusader's armor, are determining natural subterranean contour. So far they have discovered no depth within the harbor beyond eighteen feet. This depth was sufficient to handle anything the Romans or Crusaders had.

The normal arc of the Caesarea harbor, which is but one of several in the area, is but half a mile in diameter. The Israeli authorities plan to build several jetties just outside and to deepen the main port of the harbor to provide access for modern ships.

In some demolition that was required for access to strategic points on the shore, crews took down part of the Crusader fortress wall and discovered that the Crusaders had utilized part of the Roman ruins of Herod's time to build their fortifications. Marble columns that once had adorned Caesarea when it was, for a time, the capital of the region of Judea, had been placed horizontally within the walls to bolster the stone, just as steel rods are now used to reinforce concrete, says the New York Times.

The Israeli investigators also discovered that the Crusaders had used similar pillars, some with magnificent Corinthian bases, to build or rebuild the jetties in the harbor. These also had been laid horizontally with crushed stone, now washed away, above the solid bases.

As Israel intends to develop her fishing industry, the harbor of Caesarea will be of great advantage. At present, an adjacent settlement, Sedot Yam, is carrying on small-scale fishing, but it cannot develop the industry until two of its craft, recently lost, can be replaced.

Meanwhile, the Government is not missing any opportunity in recreating the harbor and trying to recapture some of the utility and beauty that were at Caesarea when Marc Antony made a present of the port to Cleopatra.

MERGER OF COLLEGES IS COMPLETED

The Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion of New York, and Cincinnati, Ohio, Became the only American Jewish Reform seminary when the merger of the HUC and the JIR was completed at the first meeting of the consolidated board of governors.

Lester A. Jaffe, a Cincinnati attorney and chairman of the HUC board of governors, was elected chairman of the HUC-JIR board at its first meeting. Chosen with him were Judge Joseph M. Levine and Frank L. Weil, both of New York; and Herbert R. Bloch Sr. of Cincinnati, as vice-chairmen.

Judge Levine, of the Magistrates Court of New York, was chairman of the JIR board of trustees. Mr. Weil and Mr. Bloch were vice-chairmen. Dr. Nelson Glueck became HUC-JIR president. He was named HUC president in 1947 and JIR president in 1948. Dr. Glueck announced that the merged institution will continue to operate both seminaries. The JIR has sixty-five students and twelve faculty members. The HUC has 130 students (including eight Christian fellows), and three teaching fellows.

More than 1,000 children of different faiths participated in a gala holiday party at the Taft High School, 172d Street and Grand Concourse, The Bronx. Patrolman Leon Katz, was chairman of the celebration, sponsored by the Parents' Association of the Yeshiva Rabbi Israel Salanter, of 1946 Webster Avenue, with the assistance of fifty volunteer members of the Shomrim Society of the Police Department.

Yeshiva University Professor Makes Mathematics Easy And Interesting

By Sam. Hartstein

For the average layman, mathematics is a bewildering subject and a pointed reminder of none-too-successful schoolday efforts to comprehend the confusing formulas and theories of algebra and geometry. Through the diligent labors of a Jewish mathematician in New York City, however, an entirely new approach to the subject is being introduced into schools and colleges throughout the country.

"I am convinced", Prof. Ginsburg says, "that every student has potential talent for getting genuine pleasure from mathematics. My problem is to introduce the subject in a way that will prepare him not only to like it but to go ahead with enthusiasm. This attitude, making mathematics a source of pleasure, is far more important to me than to have our boys plan to apply it to making bombs. My method is very simple. I begin by emphasizing the artistic aspect. Mathematics has cultural value which for some will take precedance over its value in science and industry."

From far and wide, requests are pouring into the offices of Professor Jekuthiel Ginsburg, head of Yeshiva University's mathematics department, for information on his novel methods of teaching mathematics. First-hand experience, from years of teaching at Yeshiva University, made Prof. Ginsburg aware of the barriers that arose in the student's mind when he entered the math class, which made it difficult for him to appreciate the value and understand the practical applications of mathematics.

Prof. Ginsburg has successfully tackled this problem on two fronts, first by collecting and encouraging the preparation of material designed to popularize the teaching of the subject. Through pictures, models, and gadgets the most complicated formulas in mathematics are reduced to practical form and meaning and the student made to see the utilitarian purposes and inherent beauty of mathematics. The popular snowflake is no longer just a phenomenon of nature but contains geometric forms of indescribable beauty; simple milk drops are seen to form a perfect geometric shape and the common forms of nature evidence striking mathematical form and context.

For the teacher himself, Prof. Ginsburg, through the famous mathematical quarterly he edits, Scripta Mathematica, has made available this data in a manner appealing to the professional mathematician. In lectures, courses, and published material Prof. Ginsburg espouses his theories, meeting with considerable progress. To thousands of high schools and colleges throughout the country, he has made available the benefits of his thirty years' experience in the field.

A cherubic and quick-witted man, the amiable Professor is one of America's leading mathematicians and has been accorded many honors including an honorary degree from Columbia University. Of equal interest is his familiarity with Jewish learning. For, like so many other Yeshiva University teachers, he is adept in all phases of Jewish culture, being a former Hebrew teacher and principal.

On his desk was a stack of cards, each covered with a complicated pattern. Dr. Ginsburg held one up. It was embellished with 28 curvilinear figures which he described as the spade design. Even the curves in the pattern, he pointed out, had evolved from triangles and hexagons, made with pencil and ruler. One card was covered with algebraic designs that could be applied to costume jewelry. Mathematical equations, interlocking spirals and a parabola checkerboard comprised other patterns. Though they looked intricate, the professor said a boy could make any one of them within half an hour.

"Combine the curves of two spirals, one black, one white, and you have a beautiful design", he suggested. "A student making any of these linear patterns soon comes to realize that the design goes beyond beauty and that the lines have mathematical meaning. I have never known one who did not enjoy the study of mathematics after making that discovery. Last year, after I inaugurated this system, I took a class of retarded boys and before the end of the fifth lesson they were all interested in going ahead with mathematics. One who declared that he hated the subject is now majoring in it. We used to have a yearly group that flunked math at the regents' examinations. We don't want that to happen again."

Dr. Ginsburg said his method of introducing students to mathematics through artistic cultural values grew out of instructions he got thirty years ago at Teachers College, when the late David Eugene Smith was head of the mathematics department. A prolific writer, the distinguished teacher is a very active man. He likes to recall a recent incident when a Catholic College for Girls turned to him to recommend a teacher for their mathematics department. Prof. Ginsburg selected one of his former Yeshiva students who, in addition to being a fine mathematician, was also an ordained rabbi. Almost every college in the nation subscribes to Scripta Mathematica, and other publications emanating from Yeshiva University.

JEWS HOPE TO GO FROM IRAN TO ISRAEL

Dr. Simon Federbush, member of the executive committee of the World Jewish Congress, has received a report from Iran which gives an interesting sidelight to the prospective emigration of Iranian Jews to Israel. The story began 120 years ago, when the Jewish Community in Meshed, Iran, experienced a terrifying pogrom, during which many perished. Those who survived were compelled to embrace the Moslem religion. They did this, however, only outwardly, while secretly continuing to observe Judaism strictly, maintaining even their synagogues, religious schools for children (Talmud Torahs), etc., just as the Spanish Marranos did at the time of the Inquisition.

This life as crypto-Jews through the generations left profound marks on their entire mentality. They came to believe that Judaism was a religion to be observed only secretly, and regarded open religious services as violating Jewish tradition. In the last fifteen years, due to Western influences entering Iranian life and the influence of Jews from abroad visiting Meshed, many of the Marranos started to profess Judaism openly, impelled by a desire to identify themselves with other Jewish communities. In recent years, a few of the Meshed Jews emigrated to America, and a group of them established a small community in New York.

With the establishment of the Jewish State, the subsequent movement throughout the Oriental Jewish communities to emigrate to Israel took hold of the Marranos of Meshed also. They asked Jews in New York to intervene with the Israeli Government in order to facilitate their emigration to Israel.

The Jewish authorities in Israel asked the Chief Rabbinate in Jerusalem about the feasibility of their immigration to Israel as Jews. The answer of the Rabbinate was in the affirmative, because the Meshed Jews had not abandoned Judaism throughout the whole trying period of their persecution. It is expected that when arrangements for emigration of Iran's Jews succeed, the one-time secret Jews of Meshed will find a new and free home in Israel.

In qualifying for membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations, publishers are doing more than providing advertisers with the facts about the circulation of their publications.

They are also giving active support to the principle that advertising space should be bought and sold only on the basis of verified information — a principle that has contributed in large measure to the interests of all advertisers.

In Canada, the Canadian Jewish Review is still the only Jewish publication printed in any language reaching the Jewish community which is able to claim membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

WINNERS MUST PRACTICE MEDICINE IN ISRAEL

Phi Lambda Kappa, largest Jewish medical fraternity, announced in Boston, Mass., the establishment of an annual award of three $2,000 medical scholarships to the most deserving undergraduates at Hebrew Medical School in Israel. The group met at its annual convention.

The purpose of the scholarships is to provide Israel with proper medical care and recipients must promise to practice in that country. A committee of five medical professors at Hebrew University will be formed to select applicants on the basis of character, scholarship and civic services. The awards will be known as the Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Winarick Scholarships.

The gold medal awarded annually to "the Jewish doctor of the year" was presented by the fraternity to Dr. Louis K. Diamond, of Children's Hospital, Boston, Mass., medical director of the Red Cross national blood program. Dr. Samuel Lemel, of Cleveland, succeeded Dr. Jack S. Ersner, of Philadelphia, as president of the fraternity.

CLASS IN COOKERY

one cup sugar
one scant cup bread flour, sifted three times six eggs, separated juice of one orange rind of one orange
one teaspoon baking powder

Beat whites of eggs until stiff. Add one-half cup of sugar and beat until it stands in peaks. In a separate bowl, add the remaining one-half cup of sugar, orange juice and rind to egg yolks, mixing thoroughly. Fold this mixture into beaten egg whites. Then fold in flour mixed with baking powder. Use a greased, angel cake tin and bake for one hour in an oven of 300 degrees.

Frosting

Beat two egg whites, until stiff and set aside until required. In a saucepan mix three-quarters of a cup of white sugar, one-quarter cup of cold water, and one-quarter teaspoon of cream of tartar. Heat and bring to a boil, producing a syrup. Over a slow fire and with the cover on, boil for two minutes. Then remove cover and boil for one additional minute. Pour syrup into stiffly beaten egg whites and beat until mixture stands up in peaks like marshmallow. Flavor with one teaspoon of vanilla and use vegetable colouring to produce desired result. Place a jelly glass in the centre and ice cake all around; should any of the glass show above the level of the cake, cover with icing. Use any desired fresh flowers, such as sweet peas, snapdragon or Sweetheart roses in the glass, which has been filled with water. This cake makes a very beautiful centrepiece.

Mrs. C. A. Goldstein,
4188 Decarie Boulevard, Montreal.

PRUNE APPETIZER

To a quart jar, half full of dry packaged prunes, unwashed, add wine to cover the prunes to the brim of the jar, and seal. Allow to stand for about one week in warm place; then place in refrigerator and serve chilled as an appetizer.

Knew Hebrew Law, Built Store, Owned Street

Philip M. Bernstein, seventy-nine, a Polish immigrant who prospered in real estate and owned Pulaski Street, a short main thoroughfare in Glen Cove, Long Island, N.Y., died at his home, 50 Glen Street.

Mr. Bernstein came to Glen Cove fifty-four years ago and started a small general store which soon expanded into the Bernstein Brothers Department Store. The business was dissolved in 1913, when he went into real estate. In 1927, he built one of Glen Cove's first large department stores, now occupied by W. T. Grant & Company.

To retain his ownership of Pulaski Street—formerly Mill Street, running for two blocks across the main section of Glen Cove—Mr. Bernstein had to close off the street for a day each year.

He was an authority on Hebrew law. Numerous rabbis and several Zionist organizations would consult him on their legal problems. He founded Congregation Tifereth Israel in Glen Cove, contributed to many charities and was a behind-the-scenes factor in local politics.

Surviving are his wife, the former Bessie J. Shapiro, a former vice-president of the Henry Street Settlement in New York; three daughters, Mrs. Miriam Nordhausen, Mrs. Sylene Minkoff, and Miss Mildred Bernstein, and two sons, Herbert H. and Sydney J. Bernstein.

The Jewish population of Ecuador strengthened its ties to world Jewry recently when delegates representing the entire Jewish community of the capital city, Quito, voted unanimously to affiliate with the World Jewish Congress. While some Jewish groups in Ecuador have long connected with the World Jewish Congress, this new action brings virtually all of Ecuador's Jews into the Congress. Of approximately 3,500 Jews, about 3,000 reside in Quito.

Says Israel To Be More Than Haven

Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion sent a message to Jews throughout the world that the final goal of Zionism was not the establishment of a Jewish state in Israel but its development as an economic and cultural entity where those from the Diaspora could begin a new life.

Speaking at the laying of a cornerstone for the $300,000 Zionist of America House at Tel Aviv, he made an effort to correct "misconceptions" of some Zionists who believe the state itself is all that is required and that those who become part of it are merely fleeing from fear, discrimination and persecution.

The Prime Minister declared that while the state was a refuge for some people it was much more than that, as it provided a new life, independence and the basis for the re-establishment of Jewish culture.

"Zionism today is not built on combating anti-Semitism or fear of persecution," he said. "It has intrinsic and positive motives well beyond this, and these must be developed. This should be used as a lever for American Jewry to do its part. The historic destiny of the Jewish state will be accomplished only by the gathering in of exiles although this in itself would not fulfill the Messianic destiny of Zionism."

now in Iran might be banished to Iraq "which would be tantamount to a death sentence" unless they were brought to Israel quickly. The Israeli people are willing to make every sacrifice to welcome immigrants, he said, adding, "the least that American Jews can do is to supply dollars to carry out this urgent rescue operation." He declared that much needless suffering could be avoided by prompt action but that if the government of Israel were called upon to meet these needs it would mean that funds desperately needed for defense would have to be diverted "to cover our neglect."

The Ministry Of Music

"Sing unto the Lord a new song,
And His praises in the assembly of the Saints
Let them praise His name in the dance;
Let them sing praises unto Him with timbril and harp."

We Jews have a great heritage of song. It was natural that in the realm of music we should have made such a considerable contribution. Due to our rigid iconoclasm we were barred for the most part from expressing the aspirations of mind and emotions of heart through the pictorial or plastic arts. Our unsettled habitations did not provide for us the opportunity for free expression through architecture. Hence the sister arts of music and poetry offered themselves unto us.

Ours is the music of an ancient people ever characterized by a heart of youth. We have sung in every age and in every clime and beneath every sky. Some of our song we drew from the silent beginning of times. What Jew is there whose blood is not stirred by the Shofar sound, a call that comes from ancient Palestine and is surely thousands of years old?

Earliest of Jewish music, like unto the music of all early peoples, is that of ornamental speech song, the cantillations where the words were important and the singing was not fettered by time. Even as the literature of the Jew was dedicated to God, so also was the music of Israel. The immortal Abraham ibn Ezra, some eight centuries ago, expressed it as follows:

"The Arabs sing of lust and love,
The Greeks of wisdom and cunning,
The Hindus of Proverbs and Riddles,
But Israel's song is the Lord of Hosts."

Yes, throughout the ages we Jews have been singing to God. This is well recorded in our entire literature but in particular in the Book of Psalms. We have had singing men and women, the poet singer, the bands of singing prophets, and we have employed every musical instrument that was known in the ancient world to accompany our song. Every phase of life in ancient Israel had its own peculiar accompaniment of song. The biblical account at the very commencement of the Book of Genesis points out that Jubal, son of Lemach, was the originator of the harp and pipe. The story-teller of the Bible is thus anxious to ascribe an ancient lineage to the use of instrumental music in Israel.

The highest musical expression among our people was indeed found in the Temple worship. In the Beth Hamikdash the musical service must have been most dramatic and effective, judging from the ancient records. Record has is that King David brought into existence the guild singers. There were the Levites singing in the Temple; two great choruses accompanied by an orchestra. Majestic must have been the singing during the three great pilgrim festivals, Pesach, Shabuoth, and Succoth.

Much of this singing is reflected in the greatest hymnal of all ages, the Psalms. This singing and instrumental accompaniment had to do with the expression of joy in worship. If, as Beethoven says, music is the highest form of divine revelation, it was but natural that the Jew, the very vehicle of divine revelation, should also have felt the music of the spheres.

In talmudic times, song was not neglected in Israel. The sing-song method was employed in the study of the wisdom of the sages. When the Temple was destroyed, the songs of the Temple, even as the scrolls of Torah, were carried into the synagogue. Persecution did not silence the voice of song. The persecutions, without a doubt, tended to express Israel's songs in the minor key. Here we must underscore the thought that not all of Jewish music is melancholy. Far from it! The music of the Jew gives expression to all the moods of life itself.

Our people must have been famed as singers. Often our conquerors would force the Jewish captives to entertain them with music of stringed instruments. In this light we can grasp the significance of the 137th Psalm recited by the pious in Israel daily before grace after the meal, to this day:

"By the rivers of Babylon,
There we sat down, yea we wept,
When we remembered Zion.
Upon the willows in the midst thereof
We hanged our harps,
For there they had led us captive, asked of us
words of song,
And our tormentors asked of us mirth."

The Synagogue throughout the centuries of wandering has become the storehouse of our traditional song. The Sephardic as well as the Ashkenazic Synagogues in due course of time produced the tradition of Chazonus. The cantor as a result became the interpreter of the sacred synagogue musical tradition. Because of a sign of mourning for the loss of the Jerusalem Temple, instrumental music was abolished during religious services. But a vocal orchestra in the persons of Meshoreim accompanied the tunes of the Chazan.

The great cantors enlarged upon the synagogue music. In this regard we Jews are greatly indebted to the accomplishments of Salomo de Rossa (1542) and the Chazonim of the nineteenth century such as Sulzer, Lewandowsky, Consolo, de Sola, and Hast. The influence of the Chazonim of our own day is certainly unique. Men like Kwartin, Yoselle Rosenblatt, and Sirota are household names among synagogue worshippers.

With the rise of the Reform movement a serious attempt has been made to preserve the traditional melodies of the synagogue in conformity with modern life. The organ was returned to the religious services of the synagogue. For hath not instrumental music been used in the Temple? It is significant to observe that in the Synagogue of Bagdad in the 12th Century, a pipe organ existed; that in 1716, in the Prague Altneushule, a new organ replaced the old. However, these were not played on Sabbaths and holy days. In 1815, in the Berlin Synagogue, an organ was employed in the services of the synagogue. What a storm of protest on the part of the conservatives this brought about!

The early Reform movement in America had a battle to wage in the restoration of the organ. In 1840, the Charleston, South Carolina, Jewish community had to fight it out in court. In 1847, Temple Emanu-El, in New York, instituted the organ. It received wholesale condemnation. We read that in the case of Congregation K.A.M., of Chicago, the opponents stole the pipes of the organ away during the night while the organ was in the process of being set up.

But the irony and the humor of it all is that the early Christian Church had to wage an organ battle all its own. The pious of the early Christian Church objected to the organ instrument in worship because they considered it Jewish. With the rise of the Reform movement, the pious within Israel unhistorically labeled the organ as "chukas hagoy!" If we know history we can behold in the events a "turning of tables."

Ignorance of the Jewish musical heritage has brought unpleasant and unfortunate results both in the life of the Orthodox and Reform Synagogue. Jewish artists have not done much in supporting synagogue music. Jewish singers of artistic merit have often neglected the synagogue. Perhaps the lay leadership has not materially with dignity supported our musicians so that these might be encouraged to give whole-hearted devotion to the songs of Israel. We urgently need skilled and consecrated leaders of song in our Temple and Shuls today. We ought more than to encourage men and women of our faith who are of devout temperament to give of their musical talents to the cause of the synagogue.

Time does not permit to trace at length the influence of Jewish music on the general music of the world. Briefly, it may be stated that indirectly, via the Catholic Church, the music of the Jew influenced the music of the world. It was the Catholic Church that ever closely followed the ancient Temple ritual. Hence, the importance of the Gregorian chant and the plain song in the Catholic Church service. Jewish melodies are very prevalent in the musical service of the Church. Bennetto Marcello, Catholic composer of the musical settings for fifty Psalms, admits the embodiment of at least eleven Jewish melodies. Of course, the famous "Kol Nidre" melody has been taken in by many of the ecclesiastical masters of music. Our beloved "Yigdal" was brought into the English Church hymnology by the Wesleyan minister, Thomas Oliver, who in 1770 attended a synagogue service where he heard a famous cantor officiate and requested the latter for both words and song.

We must well remember that Jewish music, too, was influenced by the non-Jewish world of music. We have given and we have taken. We must seek to understand the musical heritage of our people. We rejoice in the rebirth of Jewish song in modern Palestine. True music is universal but so is religion. Yet we have our own religion even as we have our own music, expressing the unique soul of the Jew. Let us love all good music but let us above all not neglect the music of our own Jewish soul.

In concluding, we cannot refrain from thinking of a great Jewish music-master, the late Dr. A. Z. Idelsohn, whom we knew as professor of the Hebrew Union College. He did much in preserving and interpreting the sacred songs of Israel. In these days of chaos, music is all the more vital to give us repose, joy and inspiration. Let us sing unto the Lord new and old songs. For therein lies the uniqueness of Israel. Let Israel continue to sing to its God, for therein will the Jew find much of his strength of spirit and salvation.
